

NO CONTEST OF OYHARZABAL WILL

Daughter of Mission Valley
Stockman Settles With
Etienne Oyharzabal

$200,000 ESTATE GOES TO BROTHER

Document Filed Today Shows
Agreement Signed by the Girl January 16

A threatened contest of the will of Domingo Oyharzabal, the San Juan Capistrano stockman, who died on December 12, has been averted by a settlement with Domingo's daughter, Angela Dolores Oyharzabal, who is also known as Angela Dolores Yorba. Oyharzabal left property that, according to the petition for the probate of his will, is worth $200,000, in being a half interest in the Oyharzabal company. By the will written about fifteen years ago the entire estate goes to Etienne Oyharzabal, brother and partner of Domingo.

Angela Oyharzabal, who is about 22 years old, was reported to have consulted an attorney with a view to breaking the will on her claim of kinship of which she is said to have ample proof. According to a document filed in the office of the county clerk today, the girl has received a settlement from Etienne Oyharzabal on the agreement of the girl not to contest the will.

The agreement filed today was signed on January 16 in the office of the Orange County Title Company. By it the girl agreed to the admission of the will to probate, and "for a valuable consideration" agreed "never to contest the admission to probate of said document and never to ask for or seek a revocation in case said document is admitted to probate nor to impeach or seek to annul the said probate."

Immediately after this document was signed, the will was admitted to probate, and letters of administration have been issued to the brother, Etienne, of San Juan Capistrano.

The amount or terms of the settlement are not indicated in the document placed on file today. According to the petition for the probate of the will, Domingo Oyharzabal was never married.
