

Pedestrian city's 3rd traffic fatality

Mrs. Juana Arrosagarey, 60-year-old Chino resident, became the city's third traffic fatality of the year when she was struck in a crosswalk while returning home from Christmas shopping.

Mrs. Arrosagarey was knocked 66 feet after a car hit her in the crosswalk at Central and Washington at approximately 3:45 p.m., last Thursday. Driver of the vehicle was Eli Pershing Rhodes, 49, of Ontario, an employe at the California Institution for Men.

She died three hours later at San Antonio Community hospital.

Police said a complaint for manslaughter charges is being sought from the district attorney's office.

Mr. Rhodes was southbound on Central avenue. He told police he did not see Mrs. Arrosagarey until his automobile struck her.

Mrs. Arrosagarey, who lived at 13137 Ninth street, was born in Spain, Jan. 9, 1907 and came to Chino four years ago from Argentina.

She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Cristina McVittie of Claremont; two sons, Alberto Arrosagaray of Pomona and Marcelo Arrosagaray of Canals, Argentina; two sisters, Mrs. Graciana Mucho of Vernon and Mrs. Maria Alzon of Valcarlos, Spain; and two brothers, Pierre Barcelona of Ontario and Benito Barcelona of Valcarlos, Spain.

A requiem mass was held at St. Margaret's Catholic church Saturday. The Rev. Father Jean Challet officiated. Interment was at Holy Cross cemetery.

Griffith mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Edward Wilson
