

Wounded, Corporal Arambel Recovers; Skilled In Use of Bayonet

Wounded by shrapnel, Corporal Louis Arambel of El Modena has recovered and on January 16 was back with his company, D, 364th Inf., and a letter received from one of his lieutenants by Miss Arambel of El Modena contains high commendation for Corporal Arambel for his skill in the use of the bayonet and as a teacher in its use.

The letter signed by Lieut. Joseph P. Toole reads as follows:

"Your brother, Corp. Louis Arambel, 2266586, Co. D, 364th Infantry, was wounded in action September 28, 1918, in the Meuse-Argonne operations, France. He was evacuated to an army hospital, where his wounds were taken care of. Corp. Arambel was slightly wounded by shrapnel.

"Since that time he has returned to this company and is good health. His recovery seems to be complete.

"Corp. Arambel was considered one of D Company's best non-commissioned officers. Due to his skill with the bayonet and his ability to impart his knowledge, Company D went forward in the Argonne drive with a confidence of victory that only a company well trained in combat can feel. Your brother has always done his work cheerfully and well. I am sorry he was wounded but glad he has recovered."
